Will be Good Reading.

There are many readers of the Recorder—in fact, a large majority—who will never be able to take a trip across the ocean, but, as intelligent men and women, they are interested in the scenes and wonders of the old world, and enjoy reading of them.

We have, after some persuasion, induced Mr E H McClintic to furnish us a description of his trip abroad, which was taken in early spring—March and April. It will be given in serial form, to suit his convenience and our space, and the first installment will appear next week.

It is needless for us to say that it will be interesting reading.

Mr McClintic is a close observer, has a retentive memory and can describe what he has seen. We take this occasion to publicly thank him for complying with our request, which has been urged, at intervals, ever since the voyage was made.

Rose refused to go back without requisition, and, pending negotiations between states, asked for and was given a trial before Justice Simmons. The justice directed jailor Jordan to hold his man until Saturday, on which day he was entitled to release, unless taken in charge by West Virginia authorities. Mr. Jordan held Rose until 8:30 Saturday evening, when he allowed him to go. This he did, and stood not upon the order of his going. A message from Pocahontas stated that the officer was detained Saturday by high waters, but would have been here on Monday.

Land Sale

On Tuesday last, Court Commissioner, E. B. Jones, sold in front of the courthouse, the Waybright-McGraw timber land, lying on Laurel Fork, and which has been in litigation. The tract contains something over 200 acres, but only a portion of it is timbered.

This particular piece of land might be given as an evidence of the remarkable advance in values since the speculation began along the border line of the two states.

This was regarded as waste land, and, within the recollection of a school urchin, has change hands at $50. The price paid on Tuesday was $2,000, E. M. Arbogast being the purchaser.
